Army Ordered To Launch Its Own Satellite

Jupiter-C To Join Navy Project in U. S. 'Moon' Development

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense McElroy has ordered the Army into the American earth satellite program, with instructions to use its huge Jupiter-C test device.

The order Friday night signalled a major switch in government policy. Up to now the U. S. program, designated Project Vanguard, has been an exclusive Navy project.

Some Army scientists have been claiming they could have launched a satellite long before Russia did if they had been given a chance.

The Defense Department announcement said the Army effort will "supplement the present Vanguard program."

There were reports the Army might be ready to go in less than six weeks, after some modifications of rocket equipment. McElroy said the Army would use its Jupiter-C test vehicle, a huge rocket it used more than a year ago in firing a test device more than 600 miles high and 3,500 miles distant.

McElroy's Action came against a background of criticism of the Eisenhower administration because Russia beat the United States into space with two earth satellites. The defense chief undoubtedly acted with the concurrence, if not at the specific direction of the White House.

The two Soviet space vehicles still are circling the earth at about 18,000 miles an hour. The first, a small sphere, has been aloft since Oct. 4. The second, launched last Sunday, is an elongated vehicle weighing 1,120 pounds. It is carrying a dog.

A communique Friday night from Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Sputnik II was about to complete its 82nd circuit of the earth, covering more than 2,359,800 miles.

For the second consecutive night the Tass communique from Moscow made no mention of the satellite's dog passenger, Laika.

The announcement that the Army was entering the satellite effort was welcomed Friday night by Dr. J. Allen Hynek, head of the satellite-tracking program for the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass.

Hynek said that as far as he knows there have been no recent basic changes in the U. S. satellite program. He said all U. S. launches presumably will be from Cape Canaveral, Fla., the nation's missile test center.

Before McElroy's announcement, Dr. John P. Hagen, head of the Navy-directed Project Vanguard, said the American public will be informed within an hour or so of the time when a U. S. earth satellite is launched.

The Defense Department statement also said the Project Vanguard test firings to date have met or exceeded the predicted performance "and there is every reason to believe that Project Vanguard will meet the announced schedule."

Last summer, the Navy sent a first stage rocket engine to Cape Canaveral for a flight test, but the first stage wasn't fired until Oct. 23.

McElroy did not set any time limit in ordering the Army to go forward with preparations to launch "a scientific satellite."

The unofficial word today was that the Army might be able to modify its half dozen Jupiter-C vehicles for satellite work in something less than six weeks. That would make them ready for use in the preliminary launching tests next month in the event the Navy can't meet the timetable.

There was no immediate official explanation of how the Army would set about modifying the Jupiter-C for launching.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

At least three persons died as the result of violent wind and rainstorms that swept through Ohio Friday.

Wind and rain left thousands of dollars worth of damage. The Weather Bureau estimated winds at up to 50 mph.

The wind was clocked unofficially in the Sandusky area at between 60 and 70 mph, and at Cleveland up to 80 mph.

Roofs of homes, barns and silos were reported torn off in the Wyandot-Hancock County area. A 50-square-foot piece of roof was knocked off a lumber firm.

A 225-foot steel radio tower of the State Highway Patrol's District 3 command post was ripped down west of Massillon.

In Youngstown, a falling tree limb struck 82-year-old George Cook on the head and he died about six hours later.

AT LOCKBOURNE Air Force Base, John A. Taggart, a 33-year-old master sergeant, was fatally shocked when he tried to pull felled power lines off Nelson H. Nelson, 44, another master sergeant. Nelson was burned seriously.

In Cleveland, Aaron G. Helfrick, 83, was killed when he tried to pull electric wires from a neighbor's garage.

Six persons were hurt in the Cleveland area, including three women hit by flying debris and an elderly woman hurled to the ground when wind caught her umbrella. Flying glass injured a woman in Cincinnati.

Many stores had broken windows in Cleveland and Cincinnati.

Strong Winds Lash County

Strong winds lashed Fayette County Friday afternoon and night as the mercury fell to 29 degrees, two degrees above the previous low for the fall which was registered Wednesday.

No serious wind damage was reported after gusts hit 50 miles per hour. The two Community Chest Red Feather signs on the Court-house lawn were blown over and a Butane fuel tank was toppled from its porch. About 1 p. m. two guy wires holding a 4 x 8 sign in front of Granddad's Sandwich Shop, 209 N. Main St., broke loose and allowed the sign to swing. Two transom windows were broken.

Friday's high temperature was 57 degrees and .14 inches of precipitation fell during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a. m. Saturday.

English Castle Shunned Even With Bequest

SKELMORLIE, Scotland (AP)—A 59-room castle here is up for sale because no one would accept it as a gift—or even take it with $36,000 thrown in.

But Inverclyde laid down one condition—his niece would have to live in the old castle for 10 years. Mrs. Alington, wife of a lieutenant commander in the British navy, rejected the bequest. She said she could not afford to run the castle—even with the money to help.

It was offered in turn to her three sisters—Mrs. Margaret Dundas, Mrs. Heather Douglas and Mrs. Elizabeth Torrie—who were the other principal beneficiaries under Inverclyde's will. They all turned it down.

Friday the family decided the castle must be sold. The proceeds will be added to the $3 million Inverclyde estate, 80 per cent of which will go to the government in taxes.

Taylor told Sheila of the mistake.

She went into the bedroom and came back with six pennies—the entire contents of her piggy bank. Then, as her will and testament, she bequeathed her parents three cents each.

Happily, however, her will won't have to be executed. Doctors in a hospital got to her before serious damage was done, washed the stuff out and sent her home as healthy as ever.

New Missile Fund Said Coming—If

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Chavez (D-NM) said today Congress will provide all the money needed for missile development if President Eisenhower gives Dr. James R. Killian "head-knocking authority" to speed an all-out program.

Chavez said his Senate Appropriations subcommittee, which handles defense funds, will be eager to consider any spending proposals Killian may draft.

Killian, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is Eisenhower's newly-named special assistant in charge of pushing American efforts to achieve weapons superiority in this dawning space era.

"In a time of national crisis such as this, Congress is not going to think about the budget. You can't figure national defense on a budgetary basis," Chavez said.

"But unless Dr. Killian has some head-knocking authority to put first things first, we're not going to be any better off than we have been in the past."

IN RENO, NEV., Sen. Kennedy (D-Mass) told a Young Democrats convention Friday night he was pleased at Killian's appointment, but he asked:

"Will he (Killian) be able to get the money he needs, knock together heads in the Defense Department, end the complacency and the confusion that now grip the administration over this issue?"

In announcing Killian's appointment Thursday night, Eisenhower did not specify how far his new aide's authority will extend.

The President said Killian "will have the active responsibility of helping me follow through" on America's science and technology programs.

After a conference with Eisenhower Friday, Sen. Bridges (R-NH) said the President told him Killian will have "full power and authority" to get his job done.

Sen. Flanders (R-Vt.), a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said competition between the armed services had been healthy in producing a wide variety of approaches to the problem of getting operational missiles.

"The time has now come, however, to select, unify, organize and proceed to the selection of our operational missiles," he said.

Sputnik Makes West Aware Of Strange Russian Words

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Six weeks ago few Americans had heard the word sputnik. Today it's on the way into the dictionaries, as one of the Russian language's rare contributions to English.

In Russian, sputnik means satellite in an astronomical sense (thus the moon is a sputnik of the earth) as well as in the sense of an artificial satellite. But in English all sputniks are artificial.

The Russian word sputnik also means a traveling companion. The Russian prefix "s-" means with. The word "put" (pronounced "poot") means road, way or path. The suffix "nik" is commonly used to make a noun from a general root—and give it a diminutive sense.

The Russian word "laika" doesn't seem to have caught on as well. This is the given name and the name of the breed of the dog put up in Sputnik II.

In a specific sense laika refers to a breed of dog common in Russia and Siberia. In a more general sense laika—derived from "lai," meaning bark—is approximately equivalent to the English "bow-wow" and can be applied to any dog.

Some Russian words now in the English vocabulary come from politics and government. Kremlin, used to describe the Soviet government as a whole, comes from the Russian kreml. This means not just the fortress in Moscow but also the Soviet government as a whole.

In English bolshevik may be used to describe any violent revolutionary. Originally in Russian it meant "one of the majority"—the majority being that in the Russian Social Democratic party in the early years of this century when it split. The opponents of the Bolsheviks became known as the Mensheviks—men of the minority.

The word Soviet, now common in English, refers to the Soviet government or Soviet Union. In Russian the word originally meant council. Bolsheviks took it over when they made councils of workers and peasants their apparatus of dictatorship over the country.

Commissar, originally French in origin, came into wide use in English via the Russian language. The Bolsheviks used it to avoid the bourgeois term minister. Now the Russian Communists have reverted to the term minister in their government.

Farmer Pays $965,595.84 Penalty, Still Sees Profit

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Jack A. Harris of Fresno, who paid the government a record penalty of $965,595.84 for the right to market his 1957 cotton crop, which exceeds government allotments, says he expects to make money.

"A lot of people have tried to make it look like I was doing something against the law," said Harris, "but before I ever planted this cotton at Gila Bend, Ariz. I checked with the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

"I was told that I could plant all the cotton I wanted to as long as I paid a penalty of 18½ cents a pound on my excess."

In Washington, Agriculture Department officials said Harris paid the penalty on about 10,436 bales of cotton. Earlier this year, he collected $209,000 from the department for retiring 1,660 acres from production under the soil bank subsidy program.

Months ago Harris asked crop controls ridiculous. Asked how he feels now, he replied:

"I sure do think it's ridiculous. If you can pay this kind of penalty and still make money I feel we don't need planning controls and price supports."

"THE CURRENT price of cotton is 36 to 37 cents a pound. It costs me about 15 cents a pound to produce. Even after paying the 18½ cents penalty there's something left.

"I believe we need some kind of cotton support for domestic consumption but I don't feel we should hold an umbrella over the business in foreign countries. I think we should be able to compete on world markets without controls or guarantees."

"Some stories have made it look like I was trying to pull something illegal," Harris said. "I was trying to prove this country doesn't need a support program for cotton."

44 Aboard Ship Enroute To Honolulu

Plane Due To Exhaust Fuel at 2 a. m. Today; Search Effort Starts

HONOLULU (AP)—A Pan American Strato-cruiser last heard from at 8:04 p. m. EST Friday and due to run out of gas at 2 a. m. EST today was presumed down in the vast Pacific Ocean somewhere between here and San Francisco.

The giant four-engine "Romance of the Skies," carrying 44 persons, passed the midway point in the 2,400-mile islandless expanse just before issuing its final radio message.

Robert B. Murray Jr., Pan American executive vice president, issued this statement:

"We are now past the gas endurance point and the aircraft must be presumed to be down somewhere in the Pacific.

"An extensive air-sea rescue search including military, civilian and Pan American facilities is now underway. The crew is experienced and well trained and we are still hopeful."

The Coast Guard said earlier reports of lights spotted in the water, at first believed to have been the plane, were thought later to have been those of a surface vessel just past the midway point.

THE MILITARY Air Transport plane sighted one light between the clouds. It signaled but there was no reply.

The Navy also reported "surface lights" were sighted but said they could not confirm they were from the missing plane.

The armada of search planes radiated from over the area where the lights were seen that nothing had yet been spotted.

Some 26 planes, five coast guard vessels, two Navy submarines, four merchant ships and the liner Matsonia joined in the search this morning.

The search covers a 100-mile

Burmese Envoy Says U. S. Red China Stand Is Wrong

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—America's largest conference on Asia today entered its final stages after a Burmese urged American "re-appraisal" of policy toward Communist China.

The sixth national conference of UNESCO, meeting here since Wednesday to consider how to improve relations with Asia, heard Burma's ambassador in Washington, U. Thant, assert:

"No one in Asia except two or three leaders comes anywhere near to sharing the American attitude towards Peking. To us uncommitted countries, it is difficult to understand your attitude."

"No one believes that diplomatic recognition and admission to the United Nations would transform the Peking overnight into a cooperative regime. The question is what dangers and disadvantages might be avoided."

By excluding Red China from the U. N., he said, "one damages not Peking but the United Nations, which is thereby ruled out as an effective instrument of international reconciliation."

HE CHARGED that the American attitude stems from "the isolationism of the 19th century" and "makes no sense for the deeply involved United States in the middle of the 20th century."

"The plain fact," he declared, "is that all of the countries of Asia, with the exception of China, North Korea and North Vietnam, are not Communist and are not likely to become Communist so long as their economic and political stability is maintained and promoted."

He said the United States has not only inspired most of the revolution in Asia but plays a "very significant role" in maintaining Asian stability and the "closest cooperation" is essential.

But he said America's "equivocal" attitude toward the colonialism that remains, its "failure to see the Asian mind" and its failure to distinguish between nationalism and Communism are mainly responsible for the present lack of warmth in Asian-American relations.

The Russian word sputnik also means a traveling companion. The Russian prefix "s-" means with. The word "put" (pronounced "poot") means road, way or path. The suffix "nik" is commonly used to make a noun from a general root—and give it a diminutive sense.

The Russian word "laika" doesn't seem to have caught on as well. This is the given name and the name of the breed of the dog put up in Sputnik II. In a specific sense laika refers to a breed of dog common in Russia and Siberia. In a more general sense laika—derived from "lai," meaning bark—is approximately equivalent to the English "bow-wow" and can be applied to any dog.

Some Russian words now in the English vocabulary come from politics and government. Kremlin, used to describe the ancient fortress in Moscow and also the Soviet government as a whole, comes from the Russian kreml. This means not just the fortress in Moscow but any elevated fortress in the heart of a Russian town.

In English bolshevik may be used to describe any violent revolutionary. Originally in Russian it meant "one of the majority"—the majority being that in the Russian Social Democratic party in the early years of this century when it split. The opponents of the Bolsheviks became known as the Mensheviks—men of the minority.

The word Soviet, now common in English, refers to the Soviet government or Soviet Union. In Russian the word originally meant council. Bolsheviks took it over when they made councils of workers and peasants their apparatus of dictatorship over the country.

Commissar, originally French in origin, came into wide use in English via the Russian language. The Bolsheviks used it to avoid the bourgeois term minister. Now the Russian Communists have reverted to the term minister in their government.

Obscure Hound Dies Saving Man From Wild Cat

TRION, Ga. (AP)—A hound dog paid with its life in aiding a 60-year-old man withstand the attack of a 25-pound wildcat.

J. F. Bennett told of the incident which occurred Friday while he was exercising his own dog:

"I was walking our little Brownie in a field near the house when she jumped a rabbit. Brownie started running the rabbit, then she got to hollering.

"I walked up to where she was. And that's when the cat hit me. He landed on my chest a-hollering and clawing at my throat.

"Then this other dog I never saw before started trying to pull the wildcat off. The cat left me and started after the dog. It killed the dog and then came back for me. I grabbed a pine limb and finally beat it to death."

Fosterian's Death Probed in Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Police today probed the death of John R. Adams, 72, Fosterian, Ohio, whose body was found strangled in the back seat of a car Wednesday. The car was parked in a rented garage. Although there has been no official ruling in the case, police said Adams apparently hanged himself.

CHARDON (AP)—A two-car crash on Ohio 87 late Friday killed two women and injured six men, four of them General Electric Co. executives at the Nela Park Lamp Division in Cleveland.

Mrs. Ruth Davis, 23, of Newbury and Miss Mabel Laverne Clark, 21, of Cleveland were killed.

Mrs. Davis' husband Clarence, 24, was injured critically.

Davis and the two women were eastbound to Newbury from their work at a Cleveland instrument company. Highway patrolmen said Davis tried to pass another car, was unable to cut back into the eastbound lane, and swerved to go off the road on the opposite side. His car was struck broadside by a westbound automobile in which the GE officials were returning from a business trip.

The five men in the westbound car all were in fair condition at St. Luke's Hospital. They are:

Herman Weiss, 41, Cleveland Heights, general manager of the GE Lamp Division; Donald L. Millham, 52, Pepper Pike, vice president of the Lamp Division; Kenneth G. Reider, 63, Cleveland, general manager of the Miniature Lamp Department; Ernest A. Howard, 54, Cleveland Heights, general manager of the Lamp Gass Division; Eddie Davis, 32, Cleveland, chauffeur of the GE-owned car party was using.

Farmer Pays $965,595.84 Penalty, Still Sees Profit

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Jack A. Harris of Fresno, who paid the government a record penalty of $965,595.84 for the right to market his 1957 cotton crop, which exceeds government allotments, says he expects to make money.

"A lot of people have tried to make it look like I was doing something against the law," said Harris, "but before I ever planted this cotton at Gila Bend, Ariz. I checked with the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

"I was told that I could plant all the cotton I wanted to as long as I paid a penalty of 18½ cents a pound on my excess."

In Washington, Agriculture Department officials said Harris paid the penalty on about 10,436 bales of cotton. Earlier this year, he collected $209,000 from the department for retiring 1,690 acres from production under the soil bank subsidy program.

Months ago Harris called crop controls ridiculous. Asked how he feels now, he replied:

"I sure do think it's ridiculous. If you can pay this kind of penalty and still make money I feel we don't need planning controls and price supports."

"THE CURRENT price of cotton is 36 to 37 cents a pound. It costs me about 15 cents a pound to produce. Even after paying the 18½ cents penalty there's something left."

"I believe we need some kind of cotton support for domestic consumption but I don't feel we should hold an umbrella over the business in foreign countries. I think we should be able to compete on world markets without controls or guarantees."

"Some stories have made it look like I was trying to pull something illegal," Harris said. "I was trying to prove this country doesn't need a support program for cotton."

Plane Due To Exhaust Fuel at 2 a. m. Today; Search Effort Starts

HONOLULU (AP)—A Pan American Stratocruiser last heard from at 8:04 p. m. EST Friday and due to run out of gas at 2 a. m. EST today was presumed down in the vast Pacific Ocean somewhere between here and San Francisco.

The giant four-engine "Romance of the Skies," carrying 44 persons, passed the midway point in the 2,400-mile islandless expanse just before issuing its final radio message.

Robert B. Murray Jr., Pan American executive vice president, issued this statement:

"We are now past the gas endurance point and the aircraft must be presumed to be down somewhere in the Pacific."

"An extensive air-sea rescue search including military, civilian and Pan American facilities is now underway. The crew is experienced and well trained and we are still hopeful."

The Coast Guard said earlier reports of lights spotted in the water, at first believed to have been the plane, were thought later to have been those of a surface vessel just past the midway point.

THE MILITARY Air Transport plane sighted one light between the clouds. It signaled but there was no reply.

The Navy also reported "surface lights" were sighted but said they could not confirm they were from the missing plane.

The armada of search planes radioed from over the area where the lights were seen that nothing had yet been spotted.

Some 26 planes, five coast guard vessels, two Navy submarines, four merchant ships and the liner Matsonia joined in the search this morning.

The search covers a 100-mile (Please Turn to Page Ten)

Researchers Map Strategy To Fight Pests on Farms

WOOSTER — Cold has called a halt to insect and disease activity in fields and gardens, but the chemical campaign against them never lets up, judging from a meeting scheduled this month at Columbus.

The Ohio Pesticide Institute will hold its 11th annual school and conference at the Neil House Nov. 20 and 21.

The major part of the meeting will center around results of the past year's work in pesticide research at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station. About 30 men will appear on the 2-day program, to give results of trials of interest not only to the full-time general or truck farmer but also to the city gardener and lawn owner.

A feature of the program will be a discussion by Samuel Ailend of the Food and Drug Administration on how the Miller Bill affects Ohio agriculture. Congress passed this bill to set up tolerance levels of chemical residues on fruits and vegetables.

GIBBERELLIC ACID, one of the latest chemicals to intrigue the imagination of the grower, will be discussed by R. F. Allhaus, a representative of one company manufacturing the growth-promoter. An experiment station biologist says this acid, spectacular in its action, "may revolutionize seed production practices and flower growing."

The use of pesticides on ornamental plants and on lawns will play a big role in this year's program. Special attention will be given to the control of weeds and crabgrass.

Separate sessions have been planned for pesticide use in vegetable growing, fruit growing, cereal crop production and in producing ornamentals and lawns.

DR. T. S. SUTTON will report on agricultural education in India. Dr. Sutton is associate dean of the College of Agriculture at Ohio State University. For the past two years, Dr. Sutton has been heading up an Ohio State University team of agriculturalists helping India set up a sound farm education and research program.

The conference is planned chiefly for dealers in pesticides, chemical manufacturers, county agricultural agents and county specialists, but fruit and vegetable growers and others interested are invited.

Among subjects to be discussed are late blight of tomato and potato, potato scab, soil fumigation, weed killers in potatoes and sweet corn, miles in flowers, tree borer control, scale insects, Japanese beetles, spittlebug survey, corn borer, cereal diseases, airplane dusting and diseases and insects of apples, peaches and grapes.

Econogram for Farmers

EDITOR'S NOTE: These news highlights in economics and public affairs relating to agriculture are summarized by agricultural extension economists at Ohio State University.

Farm prices in the U. S. dropped 2 per cent from mid-September to mid-October, but were 3 per cent above a year ago. Primarily responsible for the decline were lower prices for most meat animals, oranges, corn and cotton. Higher prices were reported for dairy products and eggs. Ohio prices for major farm products averaged about the same as a month earlier.

Prices paid by farmers in the U. S. for items used in production and for family living remained the same as a month earlier but 3 per cent above a year ago. The parity ratio dropped 2 points to 81 per cent. In production items prices were lower for feed but higher for feeder livestock, labor and motor supplies. Lower prices for food and building materials more than offset price increases for clothing, auto supplies and household fuel.

Population in Ohio as of July 1, 1957, reached 9,263,508 according to recent estimate by Ohio Department of Health. On Jan. 1 estimate was 9,168,086. Shows an increase of about 500 daily.

Consumer expenditures in U. S. ahead of last year by about 5 per cent but pattern of spending is different. Increases shown for food, clothing, gasoline and services (medical and personal care, rent, travel and recreation.) Sales of durable goods such as autos, household goods, etc. were down.

Turkey breeder hens in 15 of the most important turkey producing states indicate intentions to hold 4 per cent less heavy breed hens and 13 per cent less light type hens in 1958 than in 1957. In Ohio, intentions show that light breed hens will be increased 11 per cent over 1957. Ohio is only state showing increase in heavy white hens — 18 per cent. Ohio Bronze and other heavy hens intentions show a decrease of 13 per cent.

A 1,600 lb. steer which becomes a 590 lb. carcass, yields about 470 lbs. of edible meat. About 350 lbs. or 70 per cent of this is in steaks and roasts.

Ohio produced about 8 million lbs. of the total 235 million lbs. produced in the U. S. last year. This is around 3 1/2 per cent.

Wool shorn in U. S. in 1957 estimated at 3 per cent under last year. Decline due to 2 per cent fewer sheep shorn and 1 per cent lighter average fleece. Ohio production of nearly 9 million lbs. is only slightly under last year.

World soybean production expected to exceed last year by about 3 per cent with increase mainly in U. S. A. China-Manchuria crop down somewhat — about 90 per cent of world production in U. S. and China — 60 per cent of total crop is in the free world — over half in U. S.

Production of oilseeds yielding edible vegetable oil estimated up 6 per cent increases from last year in Mediterranean olive oil crop, U. S. soybeans and West African and Indian peanut crop partially offset by smaller cotton seed output. Smaller U. S. export of soybean oil likely.

Subject Material Is Selected For Jeff Ag Education Class

JEFFERSONVILLE — Final plans have been made for the subject material to be covered in this fall and winter's adult and youth agricultural education classes sponsored by the Jeffersonville vocational agriculture department.

Ralph L. Fordyce, agricultural instructor of Jeffersonville High School, will be in charge of the classes.

The first class will be held at 8 p. m. Monday in the agricultural room of the high school. Future meetings are scheduled to be held every Monday evening, except Dec. 23 and Dec. 30, until March 31. A total of 19 meetings are scheduled.

The committee in charge of selecting the subjects to be discussed is composed of Roscoe Smith, Leonard E. Allen, Homer Carr, Jerry Smith, Ronald Sears, Carl Brady and Dan Hopkins.

SWINE BREEDING will be the subject for discussion at the Nov. 11 meeting. Other subjects to be discussed during the 19 - program course will include income tax, silage, liquid fertilizer, bulk fertilizer, and lambing diseases. At least one film will be shown and at least six guest speakers, specialists in their fields, will conduct classes.

All farmers are invited to attend the sessions. It is hoped that from 25 to 30 will attend the opening meeting and that that number will increase as the program continues.

All farmers attending half or more of the classes will be invited to attend the annual FFA banquet when diplomas will be awarded by the vocational agriculture department.

To be considered a regular member of the class, a farmer must attend at least three consecutive meetings.

Coybean prices have risen enough to make storage profitable in seven of the past ten years. Unless the harvest time price is above the loan rate, storage should be a good bet this year, says Successful Farming magazine.

The bumper 3.2 billion - bushel corn crop, plus the monstrous grain sorghum production, is expected to result in 1 corn this fall and winter, reports the November issue of Successful Farming magazine.

October Illness Said Record High

WASHINGTON — The government reports that an unprecedented 2,700,000 workers lost working time in October due to illness, chiefly Asian flu.

The monthly combined employment report of the Commerce and Labor Departments showed a slight increase of 300,000 jobs in October to a total of 66 million.

Nearly all the change represented a recovery in the farm work force from September's unusually low level which resulted from bad weather. Nonfarm employment remained virtually unchanged, instead of showing a customary fall pickup.

All farmers attending half or more of the classes will be invited to attend the annual FFA banquet when diplomas will be awarded by the vocational agriculture department.

To be considered a regular member of the class, a farmer must attend at least three consecutive meetings.

Soybean prices have risen enough to make storage profitable in seven of the past ten years. Unless the harvest time price is above the loan rate, storage should be a good bet this year, says Successful Farming magazine.

The bumper 3.2 billion - bushel corn crop, plus the monstrous grain sorghum production, is expected to result in 1 corn this fall and winter, reports the November issue of Successful Farming magazine.

With the right care, the animals may recover in from four to seven days. The sick hogs should be confined to a clean, dry pen, and given plenty of water and a light.

Authorities of the Foundation point out that preventive measures against swine flu include keeping hogs away from old stray stacks, making sure that they have dry, draft-free quarters, and a pasture rotation.

When such symptoms appear, a veterinarian should check the animals to make sure whether flu or some other disease is causing the trouble, and to set up proper nursing and treatment.

October Illness Said Record High

WASHINGTON — The government reports that an unprecedented 2,700,000 workers lost working time in October due to illness, chiefly Asian flu.

The monthly combined employment report of the Commerce and Labor Departments showed a slight increase of 300,000 jobs in October to a total of 66 million.

Nearly all the change represented a recovery in the farm work force from September's unusually low level which resulted from bad weather. Nonfarm employment remained virtually unchanged, instead of showing a customary fall pickup.

Ohio Market Hog Price Shows Climb in Week

Round about Fayette County

Every time I see a truckload of sand coming into or going through the city, apparently from plants along the Scioto River, I think of the old saying that a man looking through a telescope may fall over something under his feet.

The sand brought into the county for cement, plastering and other purposes is, unquestionably, of high quality, because most of it is washed sand of glacial origin, with a great number of extremely hard grains in it.

However, my observation is that there are hundreds of thousands of tons of sand right here in Fayette County, just as good, that could be produced as cheap, or cheaper, than sand coming from 25 to 40 miles distant, when haulage is taken into consideration.

In addition to a great many of the moraines in Fayette County, which contain sand and gravel in large quantities (some of which were tapped 75 to 100 years ago to help lift the county out of the mud) there are huge deposits of sand and gravel in areas which are not moraines.

One of these examples is the famous Engle pit on the Snowhill Rd., where thousands of tons of sand and gravel have been removed over a period of three-quarters of a century or more—and the deposit continues in the flat area west of Sugar Creek.

Another was a pit which for years furnished huge quantities of sand and gravel for road building purposes, located 200 yards south of the former Klever schoolhouse, on Route 38, a half mile south of Yatesville.

That pit is in comparatively low ground, and the deposit of sand and gravel was never worked to the bottom. Apparently the deposit continues over a large area.

There are other places where sand and gravel have been removed, usually down to water level, leaving the choice sand untouched.

Apparently there are scores of tracts in the county which have never been touched, where immense sand and gravel deposits are to be found.

CLOUDS SWEEP EARTH

Wednesday morning the western half of Fayette County was enveloped in dense clouds which swept the earth as fog, while the eastern part of the county, or most of it, was bathed in sunshine.

I drove out to Harold Mark's farm on Miami Trace Rd., and when I left the city, the sun was shining brightly. But the western edge of the city was enveloped in a light fog. The farther westward I went the fog became more dense, and part of the time objects 100 yards distant were invisible.

Then I made a discovery. There were breaks in the fog, and the sun would burst through momentarily.

The fog was literally dense clouds which enveloped the earth, and extended upward several hundred feet. The fog was not like the usual heavy mists, but was composed of clouds on the move — a condition quite rare insofar as fogs are concerned.

Later upon return to the city, I noted the fog clouds breaking up, and rising slowly.

I have been up in the clouds, and above the clouds many times in the higher mountains, but it was the first time I felt I was enveloped in clouds on the ground.

Two or three years ago I was in the clouds on Clingman's Dome in the Great Smoky Mountains. Another time it was on Pike's Peak. Once in the Canadian Rockies we were enveloped in clouds, and once in the Catskill Mountains, but I regard the low clouds of Wednesday as the most unusual experience of them all.

UNSOLVED MYSTERY

A mystery which has never been solved came to light here in June, 1902, when workmen excavating in Temple St. (presumably near Paint Creek) came upon the skeleton of a camel and a man, buried side by side, three or four feet under the surface.

The mystery, so far as I have been able to learn, has never been solved, and about the only solution that could well be offered is that the man and camel both died while some circus was showing in the city many years prior to the skeletons being found, and the circus management had both beast and man buried to save expenses and an investigation.

Anyway it is one of those mysteries which aroused deep interest at the time, and was then soon forgotten. But the Daily Herald had recorded the find and the mystery was thus kept alive years later.

PULLMAN CARS

It has been 104 years since George M. Pullman pioneered in America's first sleeping car, and 50 years since the first all-steel Pullman coaches were constructed.

Pullman's first coach was 54 feet long and 10 feet wide, finished in attractive woods and luxurious upholstery, and was equipped with bunks (berths) sheets, roller towels, tin basins and drinking cups—quite in style at that time.

However, Pullman's sleeping car was discarded and was slowly deteriorating in the railroad yards in Washington D. C. when Lincoln was assassinated. It was pressed into service for the somber journey of his body to his home town, Springfield, Ill.

Because of the large size of the coach, some platforms and bridges along the route had to be changed but the first Pullman attracted wide attention during the trip and resulted in railroads adopting sleeping coaches as standard service.

Pullman was a cabinet maker, born in Chautauque, N. Y., and later was employed on the Erie Canal, but started everlasting fame when he built his first Pullman sleeping car.

One thing Pullman and railroad companies generally overlooked in Pullmans until recent years, was to provide a berth long enough for a man of six feet or over.

Little Change Seen in Net Farm Income

General Economy Still 'Leveling Off,' Expert Says

COLUMBUS — The business man may look forward to another good year in 1958, but the farmer can expect about the same net income as he received this year.

R. S. Dougan, Ohio State University extension economist, labels the general business outlook for 1958 as one of "restrained optimism." The general economy is continuing to level off, he observes. The non-farm boom will continue through much of 1958, but will not expand as it has since 1954.

The economist sees consumer spending higher next year than this year. Some observers, he says, see optimism in the automobile business and spending for houses. These two commodities have shown weakness the last couple of years.

Business spending may go higher next year than this. Considering inventories, Dougan says, total private investment weakened this past year. However, many businesses make definite plans and commitments for two or three years ahead of the time the spending actually takes place.

GOVERNMENT spending may go 3 or 4 billion dollars higher next year. Nearly three-fourths of this increase will come from state and local governments.

General cost of living may be up some from 1957 levels, but costs are expected to level off during the year.

Dougan sees a continued strong demand for farm products in 1958. Supplies of farm commodities also will remain large. Farm costs will be up a little and net farm incomes for the entire farm economy probably will remain about the same as this year.

"This means that the cost-price squeeze will continue for a great many Ohio farmers in 1958," Dougan says.

Methodist Study 18-23 Age Group

CINCINNATI (AP)—One of the acute problems confronting Methodist church leaders is to prevent persons between 18 and 23 years of age from dropping out.

Fred Cloud of Nashville, Tenn., editor of publications for Methodists of that age group, told the Methodist Christian Education Conference here another problem was to get them back.

One factor responsible for the drop-out, Cloud said, is that only 10 to 15 per cent of Methodist churches have special classes or discussion groups for persons between 18 and 23 years old.

Mrs. Brown was charged with failure to comply with an order to eliminate a hazardous condition. Police said he recently was ordered to clean up refuse and debris in the apartment.

Mrs. Brown was not at home at the time of the fire, according to the police report. Brown was said to be at work at the time.

Hog Output To Climb Next Year, Expert Says

COLUMBUS—An Ohio State University extension marketing economist predicts hog production will increase next year; hog prices will remain close to 1957 levels until the late summer of 1958.

C. C. Bowen says an increase in hog production definitely is in view. He expects both the spring and fall pig crops next year to be larger than those of this year. Several factors indicate a swine production boost, Bowen says.

One is the price of corn in relation to the price of hogs. This relationship recently has favored the farmer who markets his corn through hogs over the farmer who sells his corn as grain.

ANOTHER FACTOR is the bumper harvest of feed crops this year, the economist says. Although the corn crop has been estimated at 4 per cent below last year's harvest, production increases of other feed grains are substantial. Barley and grain sorghum are at record levels of production. This year's hay crop also has a record-breaker. Plentiful feed supplies stimulate expansion in all livestock enterprises.

A factor in the swine producer's favor next year, Bowen says is the current downswing in the cattle cycle. A decrease in beef output will accompany an increase in pork production.

The rate of cattle slaughter has slipped below last year and probably will continue downward for another year or two at least.

"If farmers do not go to extremes in increasing production, there will be some profit in producing hogs in 1958," the economist predicts.

Farm Tour Tuesday

A tour of farms where the latest practices in the field of mechanical handling of feed will be seen is scheduled for Tuesday. The tour is co-sponsored by the Dayton Power and Light Co. and the Fayette County Dairy Assn.

The tour will start at 9:30 a. m. at Miller's Turkey Farm on the Wildwood Rd. The automatic feed handling and processing equipment which they use will be seen in action. The second stop will be at the Kenneth Walters farm on Route 729, north of Jeffersonville. Farmers will see mechanical handling of grain, drying and storage of shell and ear corn.

Farmers will see a top and bottom silo unloader, mechanical bunk feeder and a paved feeding area on the third stop at the Marvin Dement farm. The final stop at the Gerald Straley farm will show an other type silo unloader, a shuttle stroke feeder and central pole metering.

At 1 p. m. lunch will be served in the Jeffersonville Methodist Church through the courtesy of the Dayton Power and Light Co. At 1:45 Charles Coles of the Dayton Power and Light Co. will show a series of slides on the bulk handling of feed. Mechanical feed han-

Central Ohio Sees Increase In Spittlebugs

COLUMBUS—There's nothing farmers can do about them now, but come next spring spittlebugs could well be a serious problem in meadows and hay fields.

The population of spittlebugs has increased throughout the state over that of a year ago, according to D. Lyle Goleman. The Ohio State University extension entomologist bases this comment on results of a fall spittlebug survey conducted in Ohio by the Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with the Agricultural Experiment Station.

Heaviest spittlebug population, Goleman says, appears in a band stretching across the state from northeast to southwest. Fields in Central Ohio are most heavily infested. In each area checked, according to the entomologist, there were fields with heavy infestations and some with light infestations.

THE PATTERN of infestation, he says, is about the same as that of last year, although, in general, the population has increased in every area except North Central Ohio, where it remains about the same.

Spittlebug populations are counted by taking sample sweeps in a field with a bug net. In Central Ohio this fall bugs numbered 7.46 for each sweep, compared to 1.48 per sweep last year and 0.98 per sweep in 1955.

One bug per sweep, Goleman says, indicates a population which

Why guess? Have your soil sampled and tested free by A.A.C. Soil Service.

How much fertilizer will your crop need?

YOU CAN'T expect to get a high yield on next year's crop unless there is enough plant food available in your soil. But guessing how much fertilizer your soil needs to grow that big crop is risky business. You can eliminate this risk by taking advantage of the free A.A.C. Soil Service.

Guided by the size and topography of your field, an A.A.C. fieldman will take an adequate number of borings for a good soil sample. He'll record a complete and accurate crop history of the field, too. Then the carefully marked sample will be mailed to the nearest A.A.C. laboratory where trained chemists will analyze it to find out how much available plant food it contains. Tests will also be run to determine soil pH. Results and field history will then be studied carefully by A.A.C. agronomists familiar with farm practices in your area.

In a few weeks you'll receive a complete report of the fertility level of the field, with sound, practical advice on how and when to fertilize and lime to grow a better crop. Recommendations will be made for your particular crop and soil. This report can take the guess out of buying fertilizer.

Methodist Study 18-23 Age Group

CINCINNATI (AP)—One of the acute problems confronting Methodist church leaders is to prevent persons between 18 and 23 years of age from dropping out.

Fred Cloud of Nashville, Tenn., editor of publications for Methodists of that age group, told the Methodist Christian Education Conference here another problem was to get them back.

One factor responsible for the drop-out, Cloud said, is that only 10 to 15 per cent of Methodist churches have special classes or discussion groups for persons between 18 and 23 years old.

Hog Output To Climb Next Year, Expert Says

COLUMBUS—An Ohio State University extension marketing economist predicts hog production will increase next year; hog prices will remain close to 1957 levels until the late summer of 1958.

C. C. Bowen says an increase in hog production definitely is in view. He expects both the spring and fall pig crops next year to be larger than those of this year. Several factors indicate a swine production boost, Bowen says.

One is the price of corn in relation to the price of hogs. This relationship recently has favored the farmer who markets his corn through hogs over the farmer who sells his corn as grain.

ANOTHER FACTOR is the bumper harvest of feed crops this year, the economist says. Although the corn crop has been estimated at 4 per cent below last year's harvest, production increases of other feed grains are substantial. Barley and grain sorghum are at record levels of production. This year's hay crop also has a record-breaker. Plentiful feed supplies stimulate expansion in all livestock enterprises.

A factor in the swine producer's favor next year, Bowen says is the current downswing in the cattle cycle. A decrease in beef output will accompany an increase in pork production.

The rate of cattle slaughter has slipped below last year and probably will continue downward for another year or two at least.

"If farmers do not go to extremes in increasing production, there will be some profit in producing hogs in 1958," the economist predicts.

Farm Tour Tuesday

A tour of farms where the latest practices in the field of mechanical handling of feed will be seen is scheduled for Tuesday. The tour is co-sponsored by the Dayton Power and Light Co. and the Fayette County Dairy Assn.

The tour will start at 9:30 a. m. at Miller's Turkey Farm on the Wildwood Rd. The automatic feed handling and processing equipment which they use will be seen in action. The second stop will be at the Kenneth Walters farm on Route 729, north of Jeffersonville. Farmers will see mechanical handling of grain, drying and storage of shell and ear corn.

Farmers will see a top and bottom silo unloader, mechanical bunk feeder and a paved feeding area on the third stop at the Marvin Dement farm. The final stop at the Gerald Straley farm will show an other type silo unloader, a shuttle stroke feeder and central pole metering.

At 1 p. m. lunch will be served in the Jeffersonville Methodist Church through the courtesy of the Dayton Power and Light Co. At 1:45 Charles Coles of the Dayton Power and Light Co. will show a series of slides on the bulk handling of feed. Mechanical feed han-

Central Ohio Sees Increase In Spittlebugs

COLUMBUS—There's nothing farmers can do about them now, but come next spring spittlebugs could well be a serious problem in meadows and hay fields.

The population of spittlebugs has increased throughout the state over that of a year ago, according to D. Lyle Goleman. The Ohio State University extension entomologist bases this comment on results of a fall spittlebug survey conducted in Ohio by the Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with the Agricultural Experiment Station.

Heaviest spittlebug population, Goleman says, appears in a band stretching across the state from northeast to southwest. Fields in Central Ohio are most heavily infested. In each area checked, according to the entomologist, there were fields with heavy infestations and some with light infestations.

THE PATTERN of infestation, he says, is about the same as that of last year, although, in general, the population has increased in every area except North Central Ohio, where it remains about the same.

Spittlebug populations are counted by taking sample sweeps in a dling is the latest, up - to - minute thing to "hit" the farm scene. All interested farmers are invited to attend.

field with a bug net. In Central Ohio this fall bugs numbered 7.46 for each sweep, compared to 1.48 per sweep last year and 0.98 per sweep in 1955.

One bug per sweep, Goleman says, indicates a population which warrants field treatment the following spring. Although freezing weather kills the bugs in the fall their eggs go through the winter unharmed and hatch the following spring. Then is the time to treat fields.

Why guess? Have your soil sampled and tested free by A.A.C. Soil Service.

How much fertilizer will your crop need?

YOU CAN'T expect to get a high yield on next year's crop unless there is enough plant food available in your soil. But guessing how much fertilizer your soil needs to grow that big crop is risky business. You can eliminate this risk by taking advantage of the free A.A.C. Soil Service.

Guided by the size and topography of your field, an A.A.C. fieldman will take an adequate number of borings for a good soil sample. He'll record a complete and accurate crop history of the field, too. Then the carefully marked sample will be mailed to the nearest A.A.C. laboratory where trained chemists will analyze it to find out how much available plant food it contains. Tests will also be run to determine soil pH. Results and field history will then be studied carefully by A.A.C. agronomists familiar with farm practices in your area.

In a few weeks you'll receive a complete report of the fertility level of the field, with sound, practical advice on how and when to fertilize and lime to grow a better crop. Recommendations will be made for your particular crop and soil. This report can take the guess out of buying fertilizer.

As To Taking News Pictures In Courtroom

There has been widespread critical reaction to the report from a special committee of the American Bar Association recommending that Canon 35 of that organization which bans news photography in court rooms, should be continued.

Not only the public press has very vigorously emphasized its opposition to Canon 35 and the recent report of the committee of attorneys assigned to study it, but judges and many attorneys over the country are denouncing this recommendation as being completely out of date and a barrier to the public's right to know, and to the full exercise of justice and its influence on American life.

In somewhat unjustifiable language, the Canon says that "the taking of photographs in the courtroom, during sessions of the court or recesses between sessions, and the broadcasting or telecasting of court proceedings are calculated to detract from the essential dignity of the proceedings, degrade the court and create misconceptions with respect thereto in the mind of the public and should not be permitted."

The association may be in for a fight when it takes up the committee recommendation at its national meeting next February. Chief Justice O. Otto Moore of the Colorado Supreme Court, under whose auspices judges in his state have permitted court room photography for more than a year, cracks right back that every major argument of the ABA special committee "has been demonstrated in Colorado to be without basis in actual fact."

Justice Moore says Colorado's experiment has been carried out with "unquestioned good taste," and has brought no complaints that justice was hampered or decorum upset. He cautions the association that if it retains the Canon it will have no right to be surprised or to complain if "the public at large takes a dim view of the legal profession which is historically steeped in ancient and sometimes antiquated precedent and which always has and perhaps always will be approximately a quarter of a century behind the times."

Time and again it has been demonstrated that court room photography involves no interference to judicial decorum. It will eventually become an everyday practice, and when it does the professions of law and journalism, as well as the public, will be beneficiaries.

In Fayette County the taking of court room newspaper pictures has been permitted in common pleas court by Judge John P. Case with general satisfactory results. Judge Case says that as long as court proceedings are not interrupted or disturbed in any way, or rights of any of the parties to a trial are not thus prejudiced, he sees nothing wrong in permitting it.

The George Baldrige murder trial here was an example where photography was allowed and there was no protest from anyone concerned with the case.

Most newspaper cameras now in use, do nothing to distract attention or in anyway interfere with proceedings by flash lights, noise or otherwise. Much of the time people in a court room are not even aware that such pictures are being taken.

Above all, certainly, there can be nothing wrong with taking proper news pictures during recess between sessions, but the ABA Canon, even would rule against this.

40 Years Ago in Petrograd

Forty years ago, this month, I was in Petrograd, working on the Russian Daily News, an English-language paper in the Russian capital. Working on a local newspaper was very difficult because whatever appeared made a local impression and the Bolsheviks were moving into power.

The Bolsheviks were a small party that originated in London in 1903 within the Social Democratic Party, followers of Karl Marx. The word, Bolshevik, meant majority and represented the group that followed Lenin.

Those who were opposed to Lenin in the Social Democratic Party were called Mensheviks.

Both groups were mostly intellectuals with central or Western European training. Most of them knew Berlin, Zurich or London more familiarly than Petrograd or Moscow.

It was one of my duties to visit these Bolsheviks at their headquarters in Smolny Institute. In this aristocratic girls school there were constant meetings, sessions, conferences.

There never was any question as to the pre-eminence of Lenin, a short, mild man, blondish, cheerful, a philosopher rather than a man of action.

Emerging rapidly to the top was Leon Trotsky, a Menshevik, who had decided to throw his lot in with the Bolsheviks after he returned to Russia from New York where he edited a small revolutionary newspaper in Russian, worked as a tailor and even as an extra in a movie at Ft. Lee, New Jersey. Trotsky, in addition to being an intellectual, was also a man of action. Lenin was a dull speaker; Trotsky brilliant in speech and gesture. Lenin was from a Slavic land - owning family; Trotsky a Jew from Odessa.

I had known Trotsky in New York. He was interesting, stirring, fanatical. I saw Lenin often at the Smolny and other places. I found him cold, distant, bookish. These two men formed a partnership in revolution. What one lacked, the other had. Together they changed the world.

In Petrograd the last vestiges of law and order had disappeared. Food was becoming so scarce that a Hershey bar was a treasure. Women were selling themselves for a lump of sugar or an egg. Money had lost all value and the bits of paper we carried daily bought less and less.

Rumors were constant that Gen. Kornilov was coming; that he would establish the monarchy; that he would restore the old landowners. Everywhere politicians of all the political parties were making speeches against Kerensky, against Great Britain, against Japan, against Woodrow Wilson, against each other. The mood may be described in the one word, against.

But there was another side to all this, namely, that Russia had lost about 9 million troops in World War I; the Russian people felt that they had been betrayed by a court camarilla headed by the monk Rasputin who had only recently been shot by Prince Yussupov. The people wanted land, liberty and peace. And it was that slogan which the Bolsheviks seized and made their own.

Petrograd was always full of rumors. Kornilov was coming! Kerensky had run away! The garrisons had gone over to the Bolsheviks!

Do you want to buy an egg? I have one in my brief case, here! A hundred rubles for an egg. Cheap, no? After all an egg is food. What is a hundred rubles? Tomorrow that egg might cost a thousand rubles.

Diet and Health Elastic Stockings Sheer, Fashionable

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Years ago elastic stockings proved their value in preventing and relieving painful varicose veins.

They are a very practical article of clothing for persons with unsightly varicose veins, for pregnant women and for hard-working housewives and retail salesgirls who will find them useful for easing tired, aching legs.

If they are properly made and fitted, elastic stockings help relieve the pain of surface varicose veins and at the same time help speed the flow of blood through the veins. In this way, they do quite a bit toward preventing the condition from becoming more serious.

As for preventing development of varicose veins in cases of pregnancy and leg strains from standing too long, they offer comfortable support which eliminates undue and painful stretching of the veins. Such stretching frequently results in varicose veins.

But for years many women who needed to wear elastic stockings refused to do so outside the privacy of their own home. The heavy cotton hose were rather unattractive, even when other stockings were worn over them.

We have long been noted as a nation of progress, however, and there's been quite a bit of progress in elastic stocking designs, too.

You can still buy the heavy cotton hose for everyday use around the house for somewhere between $3 and $4 a pair. But you can also get fashionable regular-weight nylon elastic stockings (with stretchy toes and heels) for outdoor use and casual wear. These retail for about $12 a pair.

However, the manufacturers of elastic hose, well aware of woman's vanity, haven't stopped there. Now they have come up with a 51-gauge, ultra-sheer lightweight nylon elastic stocking which can be worn for parties, the theater, dancing and dining out.

True, they're pretty expensive, about $17 a pair, but they reportedly last lot longer than a pair of regular nylons.

All of which goes to show you can now get medical help with style.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

M.M.: I had an appendectomy about five years ago. For the past six months I have had a constant pain over the site of the operation. What causes this?

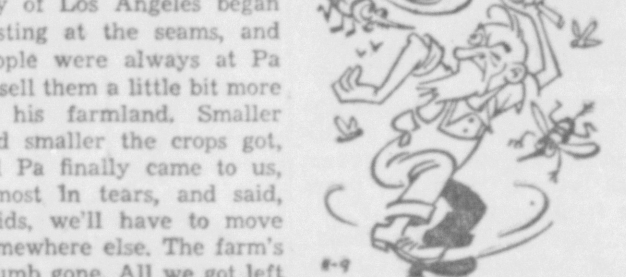

Answer: Most likely you have developed adhesions and scar tissue where the appendix was removed. In most cases, such pain disappears as time passes. If it persists, better see your doctor.

THE LATE JIM JEFFRIES, once heavyweight champion, liked to tell this story about his father: "Pa always hankered to be a successful farmer, but the fates seemed to plague him. When it wasn't bad weather, it was the bugs and pests. Then the nearby city of Los Angeles began busting at the seams, and people were always at Pa to sell them a little bit more of his farmland. Smaller and smaller the crops got, till Pa finally came to us, almost in tears, and said, 'Kids, we'll have to move somewhere else. The farm's plumb gone. All we got left is this roof over our heads, a 10,000-acre orange grove, and 2 million dollars in the bank.'"

Voters Show What They Want at Polls

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Politicians generally agree that Ohioans who voted in Tuesday's election knew what they wanted.

"Voters are a lot smarter than they used to be," a veteran of smoke-filled rooms asserted. "They know what they want and show it in the way they mark their ballots."

His observations summed up the expressions of various politicians on voter approval of two proposals to change the state constitution and defeat of a third. The issues appeared on the only ballots used statewide in the election.

The first two constitutional amendments appearing "back to back" on the ballots involved a parallel issue. One lost in all 88 counties. The other carried by a wide margin but not in all counties.

Both proposals involved the requirement for a full year's residence in Ohio to qualify as an elector.

Gov. C. William O'Neill urged approval of Amendment No. 1 to remove the requirement that only electors can be appointed to public offices created by law. Voters rejected the proposal by a margin of 338,859 votes.

Some termed the result a show of displeasure over the Republican governor's appointment of a non-Ohioan to direct his two-billion-dollar highway building program and attempts, later abandoned, to import others for cabinet posts.

Some discounted that belief on grounds that wording of the proposal was unclear and resulted in its rejection.

O'Neill, a veteran of 18 years as state representative and attorney general before becoming governor, declined comment for publication. He is expected to announce for reelection before long.

None of those expressing opinions felt that defeat of the proposal reflected on Charles M. Noble, Ohio highway chief, regarded nationally as an outstanding road builder.

Noble will have a year's residence in Ohio next January and be eligible then for appointment as state highway director in O'Neill's cabinet. He now is carried on the state payroll at $30,000 a year as the governor's secretary in charge of highways.

Amendment No. 2 won approval by 409,829 votes. It does away with the one year residence requirement for those otherwise qualified to vote for president and vice president in Ohio, after the Legislature sets ground rules.

Observers felt there was little, if any, doubt in the minds of voters about how they stood on the issue and that they balloted accordingly.

Several thousand newcomers to Ohio could not vote in the general election last year. They had not lived in Ohio a full year and had lost their right to vote back home by moving.

State and local election officials said they were besieged last year with complaints from newcomers about being unable to vote. They expressed belief that far more frequent complaints to friends and neighbors made Ohioans generally aware of that voting problem.

Observers advanced two arguments in support of their contention that voters knew their own minds and that the statewide election results last Tuesday were no accident.

One was that only 14,000 more electors voted on the question of appointing officials than on the presidential election issue.

The other was that voters in the county standing to benefit most from Amendment No. 3, the most difficult of the trio to understand, assured its adoption.

The amendment, permitting the state's most populous counties to change their form of county government in the hope of solving pressing service problems, piled up a 40,000 vote majority in Cuyahoga County.

Although seven of the eight most populous counties gave the amendment smaller majorities, the issue trailed by more than 7,000 votes in the statewide county until Cuyahoga County's vote was added. The net result was a favorable majority of 32,761.

IT'S SO EASY TO PLACE A WANT AD.

I WISH TO THANK THE VOTERS OF MARION TWP.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

M.M.: I had an appendectomy about five years ago. For the past six months I have had a constant pain over the site of the operation. What causes this?

Answer: Most likely you have developed adhesions and scar tissue where the appendix was removed. In most cases, such pain disappears as time passes. If it persists, better see your doctor.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

THE LATE JIM JEFFRIES, once heavyweight champion, liked to tell this story about his father: "Pa always hankered to be a successful farmer, but the fates seemed to plague him. When it wasn't bad weather, it was the bugs and pests. Then the nearby city of Los Angeles began busting at the seams, and people were always at Pa to sell them a little bit more of his farmland. Smaller and smaller the crops got, till Pa finally came to us, almost in tears, and said, 'Kids, we'll have to move somewhere else. The farm's plumb gone. All we got left is this roof over our heads, a 10,000-acre orange grove, and 2 million dollars in the bank.'"

Helen McKay, after observing the hazards to which U. S. Navy personnel are exposed in Paris, warned, "It's c'est la vie, and c'est la guerre. But most of all c'est la beaute!"

Voters Show What They Want at Polls

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Politicians generally agree that Ohioans who voted in Tuesday's election knew what they wanted.

"Voters are a lot smarter than they used to be," a veteran of smoke-filled rooms asserted. "They know what they want and show it in the way they mark their ballots."

His observations summed up the expressions of various politicians on voter approval of two proposals to change the state constitution and defeat of a third. The issues appeared on the only ballots used statewide in the election.

The first two constitutional amendments appearing "back to back" on the ballots involved a parallel issue. One lost in all 88 counties. The other carried by a wide margin but not in all counties.

Both proposals involved the requirement for a full year's residence in Ohio to qualify as an elector.

Gov. C. William O'Neill urged approval of Amendment No. 1 to remove the requirement that only electors can be appointed to public offices created by law. Voters rejected the proposal by a margin of 338,850 votes.

Some termed the result a show of displeasure over the Republican governor's appointment of a non-Ohioan to direct his two-billion-dollar highway building program and attempts, later abandoned, to import others for cabinet posts.

Some discounted that belief on grounds that wording of the proposal was unclear and resulted in its rejection.

O'Neill, a veteran of 18 years as state representative and attorney general before becoming governor, declined comment for publication. He is expected to announce where the appendix was removed. In most cases, such pain disappears as time passes. If it persists, better see your doctor.

None of those expressing opinions felt that defeat of the proposal reflected on Charles M. Noble, Ohio highway chief, regarded nationally as an outstanding road builder.

Noble will have a year's residence in Ohio next January and be eligible then for appointment as state highway director in O'Neill's cabinet. He now is carried on the state payroll at $30,000 a year as the governor's secretary in charge of highways.

Amendment No. 2 won approval by 409,823 votes. It does away with the one year residence requirement for those otherwise qualified to vote for president and vice president in Ohio, after the Legislature sets ground rules.

Observers felt there was little, if any, doubt in the minds of voters about how they stood on the issue and that they balloted accordingly.

Several thousand newcomers to Ohio could not vote in the general election last year. They had not lived in Ohio a full year and had lost their right to vote back home by moving.

State and local election officials said they were besieged last year with complaints from newcomers about being unable to vote. They expressed belief that far more frequent complaints to friends and neighbors made Ohioans generally aware of that voting problem.

Observers advanced two arguments in support of their contention that voters knew their own minds and that the statewide election results last Tuesday were no accident.

One was that only 14,000 more electors voted on the question of appointing officials than on the presidential election issue.

The other was that voters in the county standing to benefit most from Amendment No. 3, the most difficult of the trio to understand, assured its adoption.

The amendment, permitting the state's most populous counties to change their form of county government in the hope of solving pressing service problems, piled up a 40,000 vote majority in Cuyahoga County.

Although seven of the eight most populous counties gave the amendment smaller majorities, the issue trailed by more than 7,000 votes in the statewide county until Cuyahoga County's vote was added. The net result was a favorable majority of 32,761.

No More Stretchers?

... Oh, that this could be true! It could be if we feared God more and had greater love for mankind. Surely, this is the day when our swords must give way to ploughshares, and our spears must be refashioned into pruning-hooks. The terrible times at Lexington, Gettysburg, Normandy, Santiago Bay, Chateau Thierry, Okinawa and Korea should fortify our efforts for Peace. The spilled blood of American manhood must not go for naught . . . we must let battles of the past be the last. A way to eliminate 'war-need for stretchers' must be found . . . we must save our men and through honorable means abolish war. This is in Memorium of all our soldiers who paid the last full measure in our terrible wars. A-men.

No More Stretchers?

... Oh, that this could be true! It could be if we feared God more and had greater love for mankind. Surely, this is the day when our swords must give way to ploughshares, and our spears must be refashioned into pruning-hooks. The terrible times at Lexington, Gettysburg, Normandy, Santiago Bay, Chateau Thierry, Okinawa and Korea should fortify our efforts for Peace. The spilled blood of American manhood must not go for naught... we must let battles of the past be the last. A way to eliminate 'war-need for stretchers' must be found... we must save our men and through honorable means abolish war. This is in Memorium of all our soldiers who paid the last full measure in our terrible wars. A-men.

Lions Do Tigers, 25-20

By JACK AYER

Neither snow, nor gale nor 11 brassy Circleville football players could stop Washington High School's Roger McLean Friday night as the once-disabled senior co-captain led his team to a 25-20 triumph over its traditional foe.

To the 100-odd WHS fans who braved the dagger-like November cold, McLean was as comforting as a hot water bottle. To the Circleville gridmen, he was as intractable as Asiatic flu, and twice as painful.

With stylish assistance from halfback Ken Evans and Bill Herman, McLean ran up, down, over, under — and, mainly through the Circleville line. The seven boys who ran his interference used everything but a dogstail in guiding him and his backfield companions four times to paydirt amidst howling November wind.

Circleville was not Little Miami and it was not Hilliards — and a few of those chill-bitten Lion fans got mightily excited when the Tigers scored twice in the final quarter.

But it was the Lion's night. The runners were running, the blockers were blocking, and the scoreboard ticked happily away.

FROM THE LIONS' point of view, one of the nicest things about the game was that the score didn't tell half the story. Though they won by a meager five points, WHS outdistanced their foes in nearly every division except passing.

In ground gaining and in first downs, they made the Tigers look like a second string from Vassar.

For the Tigers, it marked a dismal end to a season of misbegotten dreams. It meant that September's flaming hopes were November's chilly ashes, and that 1957 would have to be remembered as the year of the 1-6-1 record.

For the Lions, it was a different story. It meant, for one thing, that they had vindicated themselves by beating the team that tied Greenfield. And it meant that only Wilmington, next Friday's opponent, stood between them and second place in the South Central Ohio League.

Oddly enough, when the game was over and the marrow-cold fans started rushing back to warmth and comfort, no one seemed to remember one pertinent fact: Circleville had drawn first blood.

MIKE HOSLER, a one-man backfield who failed in his attempts to do the work of four, carried the first touchdown for the losers. He did the trick on a 35-yard run that began as a Tiger razzle-dazzle. One Lion tackler almost got him behind the scrimmage line, but one was not enough and Hosler was on his way.

Asa Elsea's kick was good. Circleville fans thought they had something, with a 7-0 lead in the first two minutes of play. But McLean & Co. were not yet in business.

In fact, they were slow in getting there. Receiving the kick, the WHS team staged a 35-yard march that brought them to the Tiger 20 — and then lost the ball on downs.

That might have been what did it. The Lion defense started to roar, and caught the Tigers by the tail in four successive plays. The ball changed hands on the 50, and the victory march began.

McLEAN showed his stuff from the first, carrying for 14 and 21 yards on two successive tries. He made 9 and 14 yards on the two following carries, but both were called back on penalties. So he carried twice more, and picked up 13 and 6.

It was Ken (Dumpy) Evans who trudged through a hole on the left side of the Tiger retaining wall and made the first score.

Evans and McLean shared the next drive, the former carrying 19 yards to start things off from the Tiger 35. McLean carried for 8 and 2, Evans for 2, and then Evans ran in 6 yards standing up. McLean ran the point and put the Lions on top, 13-7.

McLean put on a one-man show for the chilly Lion fans as the half ran out, carrying eight times in succession for an average of 4 1/2 yards per try. Only the clock seemed capable of keeping his team from another score.

Circleville started throwing passes in the third frame, and it gave the Lions trouble for a while. But they caught on to the system soon, and started hammering again on the touchdown door.

Herman, Evans and Quarterback Buddy Lynch contributed their share to the third attack, which started from the 38. McLean carried the score on a classy 21-yard run that started as a pitchout from Lynch.

THE FOURTH and final Lion TD came before the fans had time to stop and breathe. Dick Anders recovered a Circleville fumble (his second of the night) and Herman barged 30 yards around right end.

That left the score at 25-7, and it might have been better for the Lions if the game had stopped then. The wind was blowing, the fans were cold — and Circleville was to score twice more.

Halfback Walt Arledge turned the trick both times. Once, it was on a 57-yard run — the longest of the game. Later, it was on a 10-yard pitchout from quarterback Hosler.

Sharpshooting Wayne Cagers Beat Atlanta

Wayne High School's sharpshooting Mad Anthony cagers bounced back from defeat in their first game of the season last Tuesday night to trounce Atlanta, 64 to 43, Friday night at Good Hope.

The Mad Anthons, after feeling out the Atlanta boys in the first period, got their well-balanced offense in high gear in the second quarter and from then on the only question was how big their score would be.

The Mad Anthons' passing and timing were accurate and they worked the ball in well for good shots.

In the last analysis, it was the accuracy from the floor that turned the trick for the Good Hope outfit, which connected with 40 per cent of its shots. The Mad Anthons were even better from the free throw line, hitting 24 out of 37 shots for 65 per cent.

The Atlanta boys made good 63 per cent of their free throws, but could not break through the Wayne defense to get many clear shots from the floor. They hit only 28 per cent of their field goals tries.

Atlanta edged the Good Hope reserves in the preliminary, 31 to 27, in a nip and tuck battle. Wayne led 16-13 at the half but could not contain the Atlanta cagers in the home stretch.

Next game for the Good Hope boys will be with the Bucks basketballers at South Salem.

Doherty returned to Denver Friday from a meeting in New York with Frick. Doherty said "Nothing much was done" at that session.

New Holland Cagers Upset By Scioto

New Holland's veteran Bulldog cagers were upset, 41 to 37, on their home floor Friday night by boys from Scioto in a Pickaway County League game.

The Bulldogs were colder than the wintry night. Normally good shots, averaging better than 40 per cent, they connected with only 20 per cent of their shots from the field in this game and hit only 9 of 21 from the foul line.

But the Bulldogs were not alone in suffering from the cold; the Scioto boys had no better average from the field—they just took more shots. They made only 7 out of 23 free throws.

The senior New Holland team did have balance, however, with the scoring spread pretty evenly among the five regulars.

Both teams used a zone defense. The Bulldogs were forced to shoot mostly from a medium distance from the sides. Ordinarily they hit these with monotonous regularity, but not in this game.

Knapp, top scorer for Scioto, connected for nine field goals, most of them on jump shots from out front.

Kubek Credits His Dad, Casey For Honors

MILWAUKEE — Tony Kubek of the New York Yankees says his dad and Yanks manager Casey Stengel were responsible for his winning the 1957 honors as American League Rookie-of-the-Year.

The 22-year-old Milwaukeean returned from a hunting trip Friday and learned for the first time that members of the Baseball Writers Assn. had made him their unanimous choice for the honor, announced Thursday.

"I feel pretty good about it," Kubek said as he supposed "I was given the award because I was able to play so many positions."

Serving as Jack-of-all-trades for the American League champion Yankees, Kubek played every position but first base, right field, pitcher and catcher.

Kubek said his dad, Tony Sr., an outfielder with the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Assn., played a big role in his success "because he kept me in a baseball atmosphere from the time I was able to walk."

He said Stengel helped him when the manager "had enough confidence in me to let me play all the positions." Kubek said that whenever he was moved to a new post Stengel would show him how to play it, and then tell him, "just go out there and play it the best you can."

The New York City Police department has five helicopters on official duty.

Celtics Forced To Overtime By Cincy '5'

BOSTON — Perhaps there is hope after all for the Boston Celtics' seven rivals in the National Basketball Assn.

The rampaging Celtics, playing without ill Bob Cousy, won their eighth straight game without a loss Friday night when they downed the Cincinnati Royals 122-110. But they were carried into overtime.

Philadelphia's Warriors stayed within shouting distance of Boston with a 119-108 decision over winless Minneapolis at Hershey, Pa. New York remained a half-game back of the Warriors by beating the Syracuse Nats 104-99.

The Boston-Cincinnati score was 104-104 at the end of regulation time with Frank Ramsey dropping in two foul shots for the Celtics in the last five seconds to send the game into overtime.

Ramsey hit two quick field goals to start the overtime and then Bill Russell and Sharman took over. Sharman was the leading scorer with 34 points. Russell got 27 and Ramsey 23. Maurice Stokes and Clyde Lovellette were Cincinnati's big point getters with 22 each.

A 37-point third period put the Knicks out of reach of the Nats. Joe Graboski, enjoying his best performance of the year, tallied 34 points in pacing the Warriors to their victory.

U. S. Davis Cuppers Fall in Australia

SYDNEY, Australia — America's hopes of regaining the Davis Cup were hit today as Ron Holmberg, Mike Green and Herbie Flam were beaten in the New South Wales tennis tourney.

Veteran Vic Seixas of Philadelphia stayed in the running with a sparkling victory over Rod Laver, a young Australian.

Youthful Holmberg, of Brooklyn, and Green, of Miami, regarded as comers in Davis Cup competition, went down before Aussies Neale Fraser and Warren Woodcock, respectively.

Flam, of Beverly Hills, Calif., was defeated by Mervyn Rose.

The first British settlement in Australia was a penal colony made in 1788 near the present city of Sydney.

Lions Do Tigers, 25-20

By JACK AYER

Neither snow, nor gale nor 11 brawny Circleville football players could stop Washington High School's Roger McLean Friday night as the once-disabled senior co-captain led his team to a 25-20 triumph over its traditional foe.

To the 100-odd WHS fans who braved the dagger-like November cold, McLean was as comforting as a hot water bottle. To the Circleville gridmen, he was as intractable as Asiatic flu, and twice as painful.

With stylish assistance from halfback Ken Evans and Bill Herman, McLean ran up, down, over, under — and, mainly through the Circleville line. The seven boys who ran his interference used everything but a dog's in guiding him and his backfield companions four times to paydirt amidst howling November wind.

Circleville was not Little Miami and it was not Hilliards — and a few of those chill-bitten Lion fans got mighty excited when the Tigers scored twice in the final quarter.

But it was the Lion's night. The runners were running, the blockers were blocking, and the score-board ticked happily away.

FROM THE LIONS' point of view, one of the nicest things about the game was that the score didn't tell half the story. Though they won by a meager five points, WHS outdistanced their foes in nearly every division except passing.

In ground gaining and in first downs, they made the Tigers look like a second string from Vassar.

For the Tigers, it marked a dismal end to a season of misbegotten dreams. It meant that September's flaming hopes were November's chilly ashes, and that 1957 would have to be remembered as the year of the 1-6-1 record.

For the Lions, it was a different story. It meant, for one thing, that they had vindicated themselves by beating the team that tied Greenfield. And it meant that only Wilmington, next Friday's opponent, stood between them and second place in the South Central Ohio League.

Oddly enough, when the game was over and the marrow-cold fans started rushing back to warmth and comfort, no one seemed to remember one pertinent fact: Circleville had drawn first blood.

MIKE HOSLER, a one-man backfield who failed in his attempts to do the work of four, carried the first touchdown for the losers. He did the trick on a 35-yard run that began as a Tiger razzle-dazzle. One Lion tackler almost got him behind the scrimmage line, but one was not enough and Hosler was on his way.

Asa Elsea's kick was good. Circleville fans thought they had something, with a 7-0 lead in the first two minutes of play. But McLean & Co. were not yet in business.

In fact, they were slow in getting there. Receiving the kick, the WHS team staged a 35-yard march that brought them to the Tiger 20 — and then lost the ball on downs.

That might have been what did it. The Lion defense started to roar, and caught the Tigers by the tail in four successive plays. The ball changed hands on the 50, and the victory march began.

It was Ken (Dumpy) Evans who trudged through a hole on the left side of the Tiger retaining wall and made the first score.

McLean put on a one-man show for the chilly Lion fans as the half ran out, carrying eight times in succession for an average of 4 1/2 yards per try. Only the clock seemed capable of keeping his team from another score.

Circleville started throwing passes in the third frame, and it gave the Lions trouble for a while. But they caught on to the system soon, and started hammering again on the touchdown door.

That left the score at 25-7, and it might have been better for the Lions if the game had stopped there. The wind was blowing, the fans were cold — and Circleville was to score twice more.

leges which are firmly engaged in building a better and stronger nation."

To start the observance, ministers of the churches have been asked to call attention to "Education for Moral Values," either in their sermons or some special remarks at Sunday services.

On Tuesday, an "open house" will be held from 7 until 9 p. m. at each of the city's five elementary schools and on Wednesday a similar open house will be held at the high school.

VANCE SAID the purpose of the "open houses" is to give the people, especially the parents, an opportunity to see the schools at close range inside and to talk with the teachers about the teaching program and its objectives. The teachers will be in their rooms to welcome and talk with the visitors.

Most of the classrooms will have displays of typical work done by the pupils laid out for all to see. The theme of American Education Week this year is: "An Educated People Moves Forward."

And, a different phase of education will be underscored each day of the week. To bring these six different phases to public attention, the committee has asked someone to prepare a short article for the Record-Herald. These will appear each day:

Monday—"Education for Responsible Citizenship" by Judge John P. Case of the Common Pleas Court;

Tuesday—"What Our Schools Should Achieve" by Kaye Blosser, principal of the high school, and Miss Marjorie Evans and Jack White, members of the high school faculty;

Wednesday—"Ways to Provide Better Education" by W. A. Smith, superintendent of the city schools;

Thursday—"Our Community Teachers" by Earl F. Miller, principal of the Cherry Hill School and president of the City Teachers Assn.

Friday—"School - Community Relationships" by Judge Robert Brubaker of the Juvenile and Probate Courts.

Saturday—"Our Own Responsibility for Better Schools" by the Rev. Don D. Patterson, minister-in-charge of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

The Massachusetts Democrat told the Young Democrats national convention Friday night his stand may not gain the party a single vote in the next elections but he added:

"Speaking for myself, as one Democrat that must seek reelection next year, I want to state here and now that I think it would be both misleading and irresponsible for us to predict a tax cut in 1958."

European Papers Rap Ike's Address

LONDON (AP)—The conservative Daily Telegraph today accused President Eisenhower of "refusing to meet problems head on" and said he personally should take charge of the U. S. missile program.

Newspapers in West Germany, meanwhile, were sharply critical of Eisenhower's speech Thursday night on American scientific progress. They used some of the most critical words ever directed against the President by responsible German papers.

The Daily Telegraph said "the American people today are not suffering from a crisis in technology but a crisis in confidence."

"It is not their scientists but their politicians who have failed."

In Germany, the independent Frankfurter Rundschau said Eisenhower's speech was "unable to satisfy and calm either all Americans or all peace-minded Europeans."

The independent Frankfurter Allgemeine, one of Germany's most influential papers, said the speech failed to eliminate an "inner uncertainty" plaguing the world.

Only 225 GIs Remain Now In Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Only 225 federal paratroopers remained on duty in the Little Rock school integration crisis today after a second contingent of 101st Airborne Division soldiers went back to Ft. Campbell, Ky.

About 275 troopers were airlifted out of Little Rock Air Force Base Friday. A group of 500 left last month.

At one time 1,000 members of the division were on duty here. The Army also announced Friday that it had started federalizing half of the last 1,800 Arkansas National Guardsmen still on federal service.

About 8,500 Guardsmen were demobilized late in October. Paratroopers and Guardsmen are enforcing a federal court order for integration of nine Negro students at 2,000-pupil Central High School. President Eisenhower ordered the airborne troops to Little Rock and federalized the entire Arkansas Guard of 10,500 men on Sept. 24, the day after a mob rioted at Central High.

leges which are firmly engaged in building a better and stronger nation."

To start the observance, ministers of the churches have been asked to call attention to "Education for Moral Values," either in their sermons or some special remarks at Sunday services.

On Tuesday, an "open house" will be held from 7 until 9 p. m. at each of the city's five elementary schools and on Wednesday a similar open house will be held at the high school.

VANCE SAID the purpose of the "open houses" is to give the people, especially the parents, an opportunity to see the schools at close range inside and to talk with the teachers about the teaching program and its objectives. The teachers will be in their rooms to welcome and talk with the visitors.

Most of the classrooms will have displays of typical work done by the pupils laid out for all to see.

The theme of American Education Week this year is: "An Educated People Moves Forward."

And, a different phase of education will be underscored each day of the week. To bring these six different phases to public attention, the committee has asked someone to prepare a short article for the Record-Herald. These will appear each day:

MONDAY.—"Education for Responsible Citizenship" by Judge John P. Case of the Common Pleas Court;

Tuesday—"What our Schools Should Achieve" by Kaye Blosser, principal of the high school, and Miss Marjorie Evans and Jack White, members of the high school faculty;

Wednesday—"Ways to Provide Better Education" by W. A. Smith, superintendent of the city schools;

Thursday—"Our Community's Teachers" by Earl F. Miller, principal of the Cherry Hill School and president of the City Teachers Assn.

Friday—"School - Community Relationships" by Judge Robert Brubaker of the Juvenile and Probate Courts.

Saturday—"Our Own Responsibility for Better Schools" by the Rev. Donis D. Patterson, minister-in-charge of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

"Speaking for myself, as one Democrat that must seek reelection next year, I want to state here and now that I think it would be both misleading and irresponsible for us to predict a tax cut in 1958."

European Papers Rap Ike's Address

LONDON (AP)—The conservative Daily Telegraph today accused President Eisenhower of "refusing to meet problems head on" and said he personally should take charge of the U. S. missile program.

Newspapers in West Germany, meanwhile, were sharply critical of Eisenhower's speech Thursday night on American scientific progress. They used some of the most critical words ever directed against the President by responsible German papers.

The Daily Telegraph said "the American people today are not suffering from a crisis in technology but a crisis in confidence."

"It is not their scientists but their politicians who have failed," In Germany, the independent Frankfurter Rundschau said Eisenhower's speech was "unable to satisfy and calm either all Americans or all peace-minded Europeans."

The independent Frankfurter Allgemeine, one of Germany's most influential papers, said the speech failed to eliminate an "inner uncertainty" plaguing the world.

Only 225 GIs Remain Now In Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Only 225 federal paratroopers remained on duty in the Little Rock school integration crisis today after a second contingent of 101st Airborne Division soldiers went back to Ft. Campbell, Ky.

About 275 troopers were airlifted out of Little Rock Air Force Base Friday. A group of 500 left last month.

At one time 1,000 members of the division were on duty here. The Army also announced Friday that it had started defederalizing half of the last 1,800 Arkansas National Guardsmen still on federal service.

About 8,500 Guardsmen were demobilized late in October.

Paratroopers and Guardsmen are enforcing a federal court order for integration of nine Negro students at 2,000-pupil Central High School. President Eisenhower ordered the airborne troops to Little Rock and federalized the entire Arkansas Guard of 10,500 men on Sept. 24, the day after a mob rioted at Central High.

Stratocruiser Missing

wide area between 650 and 1,000 miles offshore.

If the plane is down it could remain afloat indefinitely, Pan American officials said in San Francisco. A spokesman said floating time would depend on how it hit the water. The hull is sealed and would float unless it was broken.

A sister ship to the "Romance," the "Sovereign of the Skies," ditched in midpacific a year ago and all 31 aboard were picked up by the Coast Guard weather ship Pontchartrain.

The pilot, Gordon H. Brown, a father of five, is a 15-year Pan American veteran.

The passenger list includes Mrs. Marian Barber, 49, of Shaker Heights, Ohio, who was en route to Honolulu for a vacation meeting with her husband, now returning from Army duty in Indochina.

"They were to meet in Honolulu, have a vacation there and then come back to San Francisco, on their way to the colonel's next assignment at Fort Hood, Tex.," said a sister of Mrs. Barber, Mrs. H. P. Alber.

Col. Keith H. Barber, 54, has been in the Orient for a year, and presumably is en route to Honolulu now on a military air transport service plane.

Other passengers were bound for Tokyo, Hong Kong and Rangoon. Pan American said 17 persons were waiting here to board the plane for Tokyo. Sixteen passengers were to stay aboard and 20 were to leave.
